Rink plans studied by planning board

Plans for a new and enlarged skating rink, submitted to the town engineer's office on November 9, will have to go to the Wilmington Board of Appeals before they can be approved by the town engineer. So the Wilmington Planning Board decided last night, after a long study. The plans had been prepared by Engineer Daniel Tully of Melrose for the Wimington Skating Authority and Bernard Restuccia. Ken Miller of Wilmington prepared the parking plan, to go with the building designed by Mr. Tully.

A crowd of 38 persons was waiting outside the planning board office for the discussion at 8 p.m. Tuesday. There was some hostility in the remarks being passed. During the past two weeks remarks have been made, and printed, blaming the planning board for "holding up" the process, even before plans were prepared for a new building.

But the crowd of persons left in good humor. The members of the planning board heard them out, and explained any and all problems that were presented.

There are a number of corrections that will have to be made, the planning board decided. Theirs, however, is not the final decision. From them the plans go to the town engineer, and from the town engineer they go to the building inspector. That gentleman, of course, will approve if the plans are correct, and there has been approval going along — but in this case he will be unable to.

The rink plans that were submitted were without either an engineer's stamp, or an architect's stamp.

Among things the planning board noted to be in error, one way or another:

There is a proposed AMC dealership building on the land reserved for the rink. In addition to its presence, it reduces the amount of land that can be utilized for parking, by at least 13 cars. Planning Board members noted that there is no service bay for the AMC dealership. That is across the street, with the Ford facility, they decided.

The rink is being designed for 7200 patrons, in a building of 62,700 square feet. The Wilmington zoning bylaw, for this kind of building, calls for a parking area that will accommodate 2400 cars. The total parking area now proposed will accommodate 1008 cars, including 625 regular, 363 small cars, and 20 spaces for handicapped drivers.

The board noted that the building is too close, in places, to the residential land adjoining. The "set back" of the building is supposed to be 50 feet from other residential areas. In places the building is planned to be only 20 feet.

Twelve percent of the land, the board noted, is to be devoted to landscaping facilities. No "interior" landscaping was shown at all. There was an opinion that there would be problems with the Wilmington Conservation Commission. There was, the board noted, no planning for the dumping of snow from the parking lot.

No notations were shown on the plans for curbstones, nor was any area shown for a dumpster. The lighting plans had not been developed.

Bill Hooper recalled that the planning board, last spring, had recommended a 50 foot roadway to Main Street and traffic lights. Now that a much larger building was being planned he felt that the recommendation of last spring should not be forgotten. Both Carol Hamilton and Mike McCoy, from time to time remarked that this "is totally different plan" taken the one which was submitted last spring.

Chairman Tony Gentile, at the conclusion of the study remarked that "we did him (Ben Ristuccia, ed.) a favor. We are helping hm to line up the items that he will have to take to the board of appeals."

A board of appeals process takes at least 41 days, and generally takes more. The board, in effect, is the town's judge and jury on questions that can be solved without having to go to court, with particular respect to zoning questions.

The main building is planned to be 330 feet long and 190 feet wide. The plan shows a "VIP Room" and a VIP Gallery" above the lobby.

Speaking of the processes involved, in getting the plans approved, Selectman Rocco DePasquale told the group that in any town it would be the same. "The process takes time. it is state law, and it is town law. Every town has to have that process."

One of the points that worried Chairman Gentile, during the discussion was what will be happening to the parking lot when the rink is not in use. There may be, he thought, unwelcome drivers using the area. Tony reminded the board that there is a residential area close by, in two different directions, and that some of the residents were much concerned about such things.

Chemical People hear doctor on alcohol, drug abuse

by Arlene Surprenant

Most alcoholics are "genetically programmed" and usually have "psychological predispositions" to drinking, according to Dr. John Heckler of the Regional Health Center Mental Health Services.

Dr. Heckler described his experience with patients who are chemically dependent and how he helps them before members of the Wilmington Chemical People Task Force at their November 12 meeting.

His main belief, that alcoholism is inherited, has been born out in every case he's worked on except one, where the boy was adopted. According to Dr. Heckler, alcoholics possess certain chemical traits in common which they inherit, usually along with low blood sugar. Sons and daughters of alcoholics are predisposed toward drinking and must be extra careful about taking that first drink.

As a psychologist, Dr. Heckler gets referrals from the courts, families, and other doctors. In the case of car accident victims, many doctors face a dilemma, he says. Often they're not sure if victims are on drugs, drunk, or suffering from concussion.

When a drinker is referred to him, Dr. Heckler takes him through several important stages.

First, he does an evaluation with the drinker and as many members of the family as he can get to come into his office. Each family member contributes some information about the drinker which helps him face up to his problem.

There is usually "tremendous denial" from the drinker as well as from some family members, ranging from the habit being "no big deal" to being "under control." Dr. Heckler checks the family history for other evidence of drinking in the family. In the evaluation session, he said, it's important to put any "anger in the limelight" and be direct with the patient, rather than play games with him.

Next, he "nails" the patient by giving a diganosis and labeling the problem alcoholism so that he can no longer deny the problem. The drinker has to face up to his problem, though he usually blames his parents or spouse and makes them feel guilty. Families can "go crazy" with members that do this and should realize that the blame lies squarely on the drinker's shoulders.

The patient is referred to the hospital for four weeks during which time family involvement is critical, as the alcoholic is "breaking through the denial and he needs family there."

Then there is the follow through stage where the patient may need to go to a treatment center and keep in touch with the psychologist every six months.

In his practice, Dr. Heckler has found that the young alcoholic often has a tremendous tolerance for drinking, and through various emotional side issues, such as a low self esteem or depression may have led to a drinking problem, he tries to treat the primary problem of alcoholism first.

He says that the "biggest determiner" of drug usage among young people is the friends they have. If a youngster says all his friends are using drugs but he's not, Dr. Heckler emphasized he would be very suspicious.

If parents suspect a youngster is drinking or on drugs, they should search the child's room for clues and take the youngster in for evaluation. If the youngster is a proven drinker who is tearing the family apart, parents need to get tough and remove the child from the family for a period of time, either to a treatment center or another family.

Early Deadline

Next week's issue of the Town Crier will be published one day early, to allow for distribution prior to the Thanksgiving holiday. Deadline for all copy is 10 a.m. Monday.

Resigns

The newly-appointed executive director of the Wilmington Housing Authority is resigning and moving to Georgia. Kenneth Dorrance, a resident of Tewksbury, indicated in last week's housing authority meeting that he would probably be submitting his resignation. He is in Georgia this week, on vacation.

Dorrance was appointed to the position during the summer.

Correction

An error occurred last week in a letter to the editor of the Town Crier, written by Tina Prentiss on the subject of education. She had written, "cultural activities as much as sports." In print, it read, "cultural activities such as sports.

Takeover bid for Avco

The Avco Corp. of Greenwich, Connecticut, of which the Avco Systems Division of Wilmington is a part, is now being subjected to a "take-over" attempt by a group based in Minneapolis. Irving L. Jacobs and Associates have raised their holdings in Avco from 6.5 percent to 11.3 percent in less than a week, through purchases of the company stock.

The group has said it currently views its position as an investment, but some members feel that they might, under certain circumstances, consider taking control of Avco.

Avco Systems Wilmington is valued at $38,984,300 on the tax lists of Wilmington and pays nearly $1 million in taxes yearly.

ABC: Art, books and children during Children's Book Week at Wilmington Memorial Library

ABC: Art, Books and Children at Wilmington Memorial Library.

In recognition of Children's Book Week, Nov. 11-17, Wilmington Memorial Library has announced plans for implementing a grant from the Wilmington Council for the Arts for the purpose of stimulatining in children an awareness and appreciation of art through a three-part library program.

The first part of the program provides passes to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts for one year. Two double memberships have been purchased and are available to Wilmington residents for individual or family visits to the museum. Reservations which must be made in person can be taken at the main circulation desk downstairs. The museum gift shop has currently a fine selection of beautifully illustrated children's gift books and toys which are available at a 20 percent discount upon presentation of the membership card.

The second part of the program funded by the grant is to be a visit to the library in the spring by a well known children's book artist. Details of this part of the program will be announced at a later date.

The third and on-going part of the program will consist of a series of coordinated book exhibits celebrating the art of children's books. Grouped around different themes, the exhibits will continue through the month of May. Beginning this week — Children's Book Week — with an exhibit on the history of children's book illustration, subjects covered through early February will include the Caldecott Award books, Mother Goose, ABC and counting books and the illustrated fairy tale. Books on exhibit in the glass display case on both floors may be reserved. Books in the children's room featuring the work of individual artists and other books displayed may circulate immediately.

Philip Meriam, library director, urges patrons of all ages to become acquainted with the library's collection of beautiful children's books and to take advantage of the restoration of the library's family passes to the Fine Arts Museum in Boston. Said Mr. Meriam, "Everyone will benefit from the Art Council's generosity in encouraging the use of the cultural resources of the library and the museum to stimulate art awareness in children."

Tewksbury seeks sewer extension planning grant

The Town of Tewksbury is in a position to receive $112,419 in grants from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to use for the planning of future sewers. So William Mackey, of the town's water and sewer consulting engineering firm of Camp Dresser & McKee, told the selectmen, acting as the board of public works, on November 8.

The present plan being used is 14 years old, and needs to be updated, Mackey said. The town has to compile evidence on the need of new sewers, particularly with relation to the new real estate developments of the past years.

The money that will be received by the town would be in the form of refunds, from the state and federal government. In order to achieve this refund the town has to vote a cash advance of 10 percent in an article in the town meeting.

The board authorized Chairman Paul Sullivan to sign necesary papers in anticipation of a town meeting.

Miss affection

During a day filled with emotion, Stephanie Coldwell, 6, showed her affection for her Cabbage Patch doll Teddy, while her father, Tewksbury Selectman Charles Coldwell (left), and Pastor of St. Williams' Church, Fr. Joseph Blaney, O.M.I. (right), watch the Veterans Day ceremonies on town common last Sunday.

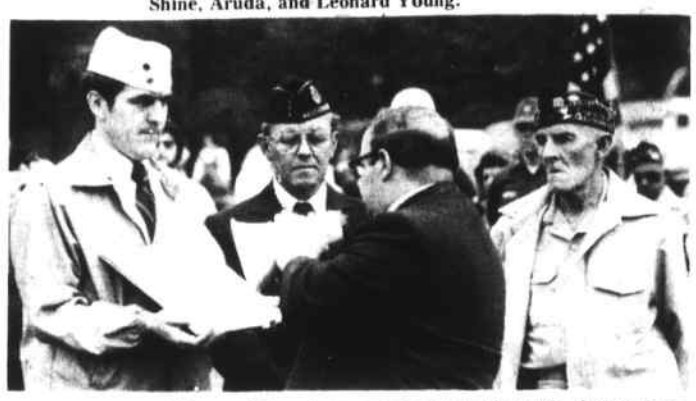

Taps

Tewksbury Memorial High School trumpter Eric Gagnon plays taps during the flag raisisng ceremony held as part of Veterans Day activities on the town common last Sunday.

Firing squad

The loss of a leg earlier this year didn't prevent Al Aruda from participating in Wilmington's Veterans' Day exercises. Wearing an artificial limb, he was in his usual place in the firing squad. From left, Charlie Kelley, Arthur Jensen, Mike Shine, Aruda, and Leonard Young.

Citation

Veterans' Day observances were held on Wilmington Common Sunday morning. Keeping with tradition, the ceremonies were at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month. Rep. Jim Miceli presented special citations to each of the town's three veterans' groups. From left, DAV Commander Frederick Shine, American Legion Commander Clayton Tracy, and VFW Commander Leonard Young.

Vets honored

Commander of the Tewksbury chapter of the Disabled American Veterans, Charles English (right), and the Past Commander of the Veterans of Foreign War Post, Robert Fay (right), received citiions passed by the Mass House of Representatives for their diligent work on behalf of American war veterans from Dick Wilson, legislative aid to State Rep. Jim Miceli, during Veterans Day ceremonies on the town common last Sunday.

Guest speaker

Col. Bruno Bertelli, a 33 year veteran of the National Guard, was the guest speaker during Veterans Day ceremonies on Tewksbury town common last Sunday. Col. Bertelli is one of the few to win the Mass. Military Medal when he assisted in putting out an ammunition fire at Camp Drum several years ago. In the background, from l. to r., are: Patriotic Activity Committee (PAC) member Mark Roberts; PAC Chairman Tom Conlon, a Navy veteran;

Reading Symphony presents two programs

The Reading Symphony Orchestra has announced two events which follow each other quickly in the near future. The first is their regular symphony program on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 18 at 3:30 at the Reading High School auditorium. The second is the annual Messiah Sing held Tuesday evening, Dec. 4 at the Old South Methodist Church in Reading square.

Daniel Abbott will conduct the regular symphony program which will include Overtures to William Tell by Rossini, and Rosamunde by Shubert. Completing the program will be Benjamin Britten's Soirees Musicales and the Symphony No. 3 by Beethoven, the Erioca. Tickets may be purchased at the door with special rates for students and senior citizens.

The Messiah Sing is a popular feature of the Christmas season. Members of the Reading Symphony will play under the direction of guest conductor James Roth, and the audience is asked to take their own copies of Handel's Messiah to be used in the sing-a-long. Other copies will be available.

Soloists will be Barbara Trombley, soprano; alto, Betty Morabito; tenor, Philip Conti; and baritone, Paul Ciano. The Messiah Sing begins at 8 p.m. but is preceded by a half hour program by the Old South Bell Ringers led by Joan Hodgkins. This portion begins at 7:30. Whether you go to sing or just to listen, early arrival is suggested as this event is usually packed and seating is limited. Admission is free.

National Honor Society plans flea market in Tewksbury

Members of the Tewksbury High School National Honor Society (NHS) and their families are finalizing plans for a Saturday, November 17 flea market and enormous indoor yard sale to be held in the High School cafeteria from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Proceeds from the event will benefit the spring trip fund.

Free souveniers to all the children, booster prizes, hot dogs and cake sales are but some of the plans.

So far, the NHS members have been encouraged by the townspeople's support on the mile of dimes project at Heartland and pot-o-gold at Demoulas Market Basket, even though the weather was not very cooperative. Their Election Day candy sale was a sellout during some shifts and locations. However, their trip destination is dependent on how lucrative this major fall fund raiser is because hotel reservations need to be made by December 1.

Donations of any type of used or new goods are still being sought. Those wishing to make a donation can also request that it be picked up by calling either 851-7580 or any of the following NHS members:

Bob Bennett, Michelle Cochrane, Debbie Desmond, Gina or Michelle DeVivo, Alison Dockray, Dave Flanagan, Ed Garabedian, Felicia Graham, Kathy Gonzales, Val Greene, Karl Kresien, Tim Lane, Craig LeDuc, Kim Martinez, Paul McSweeney, Tracy Meehan, Marc Paquin, Lisa Riss, Gina Salemi, Tracy Stratis, Scott Thornton, Jenny Trudeau, or advisors Mrs. Acone and Williamson or Mr. Koumantzelis. All contributions are tax deductible and will be gratefully received.

Voter registration session for town meeting on Nov. 17

Elizabeth A. Carey, Tewksbury town clerk, informs residents that a special voter registration session has been scheduled by the board of registrars for Saturday, November 17, from noon to 8 p.m. at the town hall.

This is the last day to register so as to be able to vote at the upcoming special town meeting on November 28. This will allow residents who have not yet registered to vote, the opportunity to do so.

Tewksbury Knights of Columbus to hold blood drive

The Fr. Coppens Council No. 4336, Knights of Columbus, will conduct its semi-annual blood drive Wednesday, November 28 at the Council Hall on Main Street, Tewksbury. The hours of the drive will be 2 to 7:45 p.m. A free spaghetti and meatballs dinner will be served to every donor.

Area residents are asked to remember that when they give blood its a real heart-to-heart transaction. It is a gift that circulates continually. For an appointment call 851-6035.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

The proposed hockey rink made the news again. Mr. Ristuccia's unkind remarks about some board chairmen are not called for. Apparently Mr. Ristuccia feels he is above our zoning bylaws. Our building inspector, planning board and conservation commission are set up to protect the town's interests.

The size of the rink is Mr. Ristuccia's problem, not the boards'. They (from what I have been led to believe) were willing to hurry that along. He is more than doubling the size of the building and the parking spaces — from 1200 seating to a minimum of 3500. Think of that the next time you "stop and go" down Route 38.

Wetlands are involved in the site, yet we have yet to hear how he will provide compensation for that, with such a large facility and parking spaces.

How can we, the abuttors, take Mr. Ristuccia's word that he will arrange everything when he (or his contractor) already violated an order and removed wetland vegetation which cannot be replaced. In the November 7th Town Crier, the article stated he already has a problem with "certain illegalities" with his dealerships, and signs which are up violating some zoning regulations.

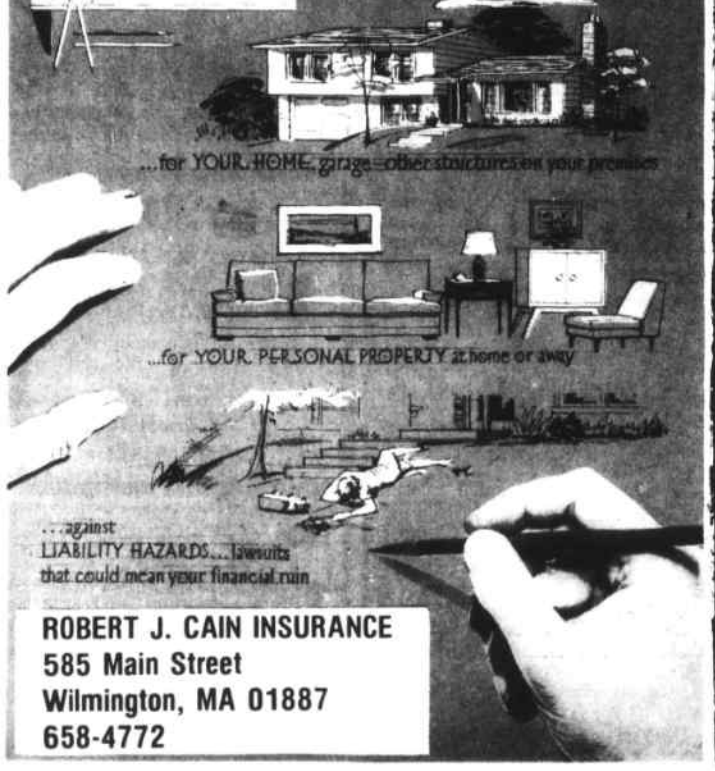

If the town needs a rink — build the one that was originally proposed, not the olympic sized problem now being offered.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven Sciarappa

Barbara Nellson weds Steven Sciarappa

Barbara Ann Nellson, daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nellson of Pearl Street, Reading became the bride of Steven Sciarappa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sciarappa of Sherwood Road, Wilmington on Saturday, October 6.

The altar of St. Athanasius Church in Reading before which the Rev. Ronald Calhoun performed the late morning ceremony, was softly draped in pink and adorned with burgandy mums and baby's breath.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a gown of chantilly lace over bridal taffeta featuring a high neckline, bishop sleeves and a fitted bodice, accented with sead pearls. Her skirt swept into a chapel train and her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a wreath of seed pearls and silk flowers. She carried a nosegay of white roses, baby's breath and streamers.

Laura Kelly of Swampscott acted as matron of honor in a gown of burgandy featuring a high neck, lace yoke and bell sleeves, draped bodice and gathered skirt. She carried a nosegay of pink and burgandy carnations, white mums and baby's breath

The bride's attendants included, Mrs. Jeanne McManus of Lynn, Suzanne Sciarappa, Nancianne Sciarappa, Mrs. Lori Banghart, Mrs. Donna Bosse, and Christine Bertini. They were attired in gowns of daphne rose, styled like that of the matron of honor. They carried nosegays of white mums, pink and burgandy carnations and baby's breath.

Bonnie McManus of Lynn, niece of the bride served as junior bridesmaid while Kelly McManus, niece of the bride, also of Lynn acted as flower girl.

Alan Smith acted as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Donald and Thomas and Richard Nellson, brothers of the bride; Michael and Thomas Sciarappa, brothers of the groom and Timothy Banghart.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Kings Grant, Danvers where Melissa and Melonie Nellson of Lynn, nieces of the bride circulated the guest book.

For traveling the new Mrs. Sciarappa chose a grey pin stripe two piece dress with a peter pan collar and a red bow at the neck.

The bride graduated from Wilmington High School with the class of 1981 and is now employed by Computervision of Bedford.

Her husband is a 1979 graduate of Shawsheen Tech, now employed as a machinist.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple is now living in Lawrence.

Sticks away

Rene Allaby (36) sticks this ball to a teammate in tournament play. Rene and her teammates battled Rockport for the Division II title Tuesday at Bishop Fenwick, dropping a tough 1-0 decision.

Title bound

Wilmington High School's Kristen Butt (8) drives the ball past a Lynnfield player in Eastern Mass. Tournament action. Kristen's hustle was a big factor in the Wildcat' run at the title.

Kathy leads play

Conference Most Valuable Player Kathy Robinson (9) leads this partial breakaway while teammate Kristen Butt (8) trails the play. Wilmington defeated Lynnfield and Marblehead by 1-0 scores in tourney play before bowing to Rockport in the championship final Tuesday. See other photo on page 10.

Rockport nips Wildcats for State crown, 1-0

Defense was the name of the game throughout the Eastern Massachusetts Field Hockey Tournament, with Wilmington High School's Wildcats again proving that despite a lack of scoring throughout their three tourney games that they indeed are one of ths best teams in the state.

Coach Jan Cassidy's girls used just a pair of timely goals in two games and the solid goaltending of Kristen Pepe to advance all the way to the Division II North Championship against Rockport Tuesday afternoon at Bishop Fenwick High School in Peabody.

After two previous 1-0 tourney victories, the Wildcats finally dropped a 1-0 squeaker in the title tilt.

Wilmington won its' first game of the tourney, 1-0 over Lynnfield before edging a tough Marblehead squad by that same 1-0 score Saturday.

Kristen Butt notched the Wilmington goal that sent the locals to the final game. Marion Cushing picked up an assist on the play with a super rush upfield.

Sharon Carbone was also outstanding for the Wildcats in the Marblehead victory, as was goalie Kristen Pepe with a breakaway save and her 12th shutout of the season.

Members of the 1984 WHS field hockey squad are seniors Kristen Butt, Martha Burns, Sharon Carbone, Janet Crowley, Kristen Pepe, Valerie Sullivan and league MVP Kathy Robinson.

The juniors on the team are Rene Allaby, Marion Cushing, Lisa Cutone, Nancy Newark, Aurelie Smith and Carolyn Tuxbury.

The Wilmington sophomores cracking the varsity squad were Karen Anderson and Cheryl Ward. Lori Hanlon was the team manager.

So close

Top to bottom: WHS coach Jan Cassidy offers some advice; Kathy Robinson gets tangled up; and Rene Allaby (36) displays some defense.

Winchester eliminates TMHS

An experience to remember

Call it bad luck, inexperience, nerves, or just getting beat by a better team. Whatever, the Tewksbury High School varsity soccer season is over after last week's 3-0 tourney loss to Winchester. The season ends with a hard knot in the chest as far as the coaches are concerned.

The problem with a state tournament is that when it is all over, there is only one winner, and all teams that qualified, except one, are going to end their season with a loss. Usually, this loss lodges in a coach's and his players' systems until the next season.

Well, blame this loss on inexperience - period. Nerves are always there, but Winchester was just was not a better team. An equilavent team - yes, but in no way better than the Redmen.

The TMHS experience was on the front line, the inexperience on defense. The forwards had chances, but fewer than they were accustomed to. With only one player with limited state tourney experience, the anticipated, but unhoped for, came true. Tewksbury played badly, but to let the season end on a down note like this would be even worse.

The season is what counted for this group of good kids. The Tewksbury soccer squad won 13 games out of 18. They tied one and lost only four- two to Billerica and two to Andover - both experienced and veteran teams. And with two of those losses, wins were a definite reality late in both games.

Seven sophomores on a varsity team is virtually unheard of, especially when many of them are regular starters. Six juniors- five of them regular starters- represent the future of TMHS soccer. Thats where the Tewksbury season continues, not ends.

A 3-0 loss to an experienced and veteran Winchester team is just that - a loss and obviously is nothing to shed tears over. Many of the players still don't unrstand why they lost, but will definitely understand why they win next season.

Winchester 3 Tewksbury 0

Winchester made the State Tournament by the skin of its' teeth in the extremely talented Middlesex School League. Tewksbury would apply five minutes of early offensive pressure, but would eventually settle back to try to keep the ball out of the net.

Tewksbury's defense continually made several miscues and many more times make several last second saves after goalkeeper Ricky Heartquist was beaten.

The ice wasn't broken until the 31 minute mark when a corner kick would be headed into the net by one of Winchester's six foot giants. One minute later an overly agressive move by the defense would result in a goalkeeper and fullback miscommunication and an easy goal for the team in black.

Winchester would score the game's final goal at the 17 minute mark of the second half, and then sit back, allowing Tewksbury several opportunities to get untracked with no result.

Although outshot 29-21, more than half of the Winchester shots were on target with several outstanding saves by both the defenders, especially Kenny Krugh and Ed Sipowicz and goalkeeper Ricky Heartquist.

an inability to get the ball up to the forwards proved to be the Redmen downfall, and an abundance of Winchester corner kicks finally resulted with the game winner.

Winchester would travel to Acton - Boxboro the next day for continued action, while the Redmen go on to school the next day with thoughts of next seasons' success.

Merrimack Valley All Stars

Although the Small School Division of the MVC was not talent loaded as far as All-Stars were concerned according to the coaches, Tewksbury and Wilmington were able to send three stars to the contest.

The Redmen were represented in the All-Conference (Large and Small School combined) by all-around junior Marc Masone, basically a center forward and junior goalkeeper Ricky Heartquist. For Wilmington, tough sweeper back Sean Connors represented the Small School Division with some solid play.

Saturday, November 3, the Large School vs Small School All-Star game was held at frosty Greater Lawrence Regional. The Large School All-Stars edged the Small School All-Stars, 3-2. Sean Connors of Wilmington was outstanding the entire game, and playing well and giving up only one of the three goals was Ricky Heartquist of Tewksbury.

Also playing well for the Wildcats were Steve Caizzi, Brian Wetzler and Jim Taylor along with Redmen Marc Masone, Jim Field, David Flanagan and Nario Simao. Scott Thornton was also chose to play, but an injury forced him to sit out the game.

Tewksbury wrapup

The seniors who will be missed are co-captains Jim Field, Scott Thornton and fellow seniors Ken Krugh, Peter Kushnieruk, Dave Flanagan, Paul McSweeney, Kevin Polleck, Darrell Favreau and Danny Carroll.

Returning juniors for 1985 will be Nario Simao, Ricky Heartquist, Joey Weser, Keith Tower, Marc Masone and Jimmy Latta.

Returning sophomores for 1985 will be Todd Simas, Kyle Favreau, Sam Dias, Robert Field, John Fleury, Ed Sipowicz and Mike Paglia.

Final statistics

Marc Masone, 16 goals, eight assists, 24 points; Jim Field, 10 goals, eight assists, 18 points; Scott Thornton, five goals, seven

Irvine return

TMHS senior co-captain Mike Irvine (17) breaks away on a fine first quarter punt return that helped set up the first Redmen touchdown in Saturday's 21-9 romp past Andover.

Redmen close out tough season

The Tewksbury High School field hockey team came up with a scoreless tie against Methuen last week. The Redmen dominated the play in the first half by keeping the ball in the offensive end. Both wings Karen Fahey and Lynn Ploof made several outstanding passes and came close to scoring on many occasions. On the defensive end, Chris Blake played an excellent game, making several key interceptions.

Top notch

Small School All-Star coaches Steve Levine (facing camera) and Dick Scanlon meet following a conference game this season.

In their next game, the Redmen shut out Greater Lowell, 1-0. Sue Wyshak scored the winning goal in the first half off a pass from wing Michelle DeVivo. Playing well defensively for Tewksbury were sophomores Chris Blake and Karen Corbett. Goalie DeeDee Lamport scored her fourth shutout of the season.

In their last league game, the Redmen upset Andover by holding the third place team to a scoreless tie. Once again the defense played an excellent game, with links Michelle Catalano, Val Greene and Karen Corbett leading the defense with several key interceptions. Goalie DeeDee Lamport made 10 saves to score her third consecutive shutout and fifth for the season.

The Redmen ended their season with a 3-10-5 record. Forward Sue Wyshak and goalie DeeDee Lamport were chosen by area coaches to play in the annual All Star field hockey game.

The Redmen will lose seven players to graduation. Seniors include Karen Fahey, Noelle Codner, Michelle Catalano, Michelle DeVivo and tri-captains Val Green, DeeDee Lamport and Sue Wyshak. The captains for next year's team are Sue Pollard and Missy Glencross.

Tewksbury trims Andover, 6-3

Tewksbury International clinched the Division III North title with a 6-3 romp over Andover White in recent Over The Hill Soccer League action.

International's goals came from Pius Leung (three), Leo Dias, Roland Pleosser and Dick Lee. As the Northern winners, International will host the southern runnersup (Framingham or North Pond

Simas leads Bentley soccer

The Bentley College soccer Falcons, who finished the regular season with a 7-7-2 record (3-2-2 in the conference), were seeded third and played at number two Springfield in recent playoff action.

After a 4-0 record during the month of September, the Falcons had their troubles last month, recording just two wins and two ties in 11 contests. They bounced back Saturday, November 3 by defeating Bryant, 3-1 in a game Bentley had to win in order to make the conference tournament.

The Falcons' game aagainst Springfield was indicative of how little luck the team had during October. Twice Bentley had leads (1-0 in the second half and 2-1 in the first overtime), only to see the Chiefs come back and score in the final minutes.

John Scarano tallied for Springfield with 2:41 remaining in regulation to force the overtime, while Ed Beauregard successfully executed a penalty kick with 4:04 remaining in the second overtime to give Springfield a 2-2 tie.

Offensively, Bentley is led by junior George Simas of Tewksbury and senior co-captains Fred Paglia and Tony Rae.

Simas is the team's top scorer with six goals and two assists. Paglia has scored twice and registered five assists, while Rae, who missed most of the last two seasons due to a severe knee injury, has tallied four times.

The Falcons' defense is anchored by John Breda, a senior who has a 1.34 goals against average and four shutouts this season.

Clark University Women's field hockey team won the MAIAW Class C State Championship by outscoring Anna Maria College, also of Worcester, 3-0. Clark, seeded first, had to get past fourth seeded Worcester State in a tense quadruple overtime match to reach the final.

The state tourney was a replay of the Worcester City Championship earlier this season when Clark also defeated Anna Maria, 2-1 in the final. This is the fourth consecutive year Clark has competed in the state tourney. The Cougars won the state crown for the first time in 1981 when the seven seniors on the present 16 player roster were freshmen. The tourney was hosted October 20 by third seeded Nicholas College.

In the final against second seeded Anna Marie, senior Lisa Madden of Wilmington scored a goal and freshman Kristen Hulbregtsen of Hozge Bussum, Netherlands scored the other two. Sophomore Kelly Henson of Seekonk preserved the shutout to wrap up the championship and give the Lady Cougars a 13-4 record for the season. With one game remaining, Clark is a serious contender for an ECAC tournament berth.

"This was our best effort of the season,." said sixth year coach Lynn Olson. "It was gratifying to see the team pull together in such an important contest. We carried the play to a very good Anna Maria team." Olson went on to praise the defense for the two shutouts. "Even though the score of the Worcester State game was 3-1, the goal was scored during the stroke-off in overtime. In regular field play we were unscored upon in the two games and that is a tribute to the aggressiveness and poise of our veteran defense."

Lisa Madden was also among four Clark players to to be selected to the all-tournament team.

Potter With WHS art students watching, ceramicist Steven Rae applies a glaze to just-made pot.

Cut-away After finishing the molding of a pot, Rae then cut it in half, to demonstrate the thickness of the clay.

Potter visits Wilmington schools

Friday, November 2, Steven Rae, a ceramicist, was an artist - in - residence for the day — first at North Intermediate and then at the High School. The demonstration was arranged by art instructor, Barbara Marder.

Mr. Rae is from New Jersey where he studied ceramics and art education at William Patterson College. He taught art in New Jersey for two years, but left teaching to become a full time studio potter. He is now pursuing an advanced degree in ceramics at Massachusetts College of Art.

Mr. Rae creates functonal objects from clay. He believes his ceramic creations should be useful as well as pleasing to the eye. He focuses on traditional forms with a contemporary flair in designing dinner sets, trays, tea pots, and other objects. He uses earthenware as well as stoneware and porcelain clay bodies. Like most ceramic artists, he has invented glaze recipes to decorate his forms. Mr. Rae left the works he created at the High School so that students enrolled in ceramics classes could learn from his examples.

Students in Wilmington welcomed Mr. Rae with enthusiasm and found his demonstrations to be both informative and inspiring. Such visiting artists are part of the Performing and Fine Arts Department's continued commitment to enrich the arts curriculum of Wilmington students.

Faculty notes

Mrs. Barbara Marder, a practicing artist and an art instructor at Wilmington High School has been awarded a $250 grant toward creating an enameled wall piece for a Newton public building. Mrs. Marder has done an enameling unit with her Wilmington High School students to teach them the techniques involved in this art form.

Mrs. Toby Simon, music instructor at the Woburn Street School, is a member of Chorus Pro Musica, Boston. She will be participating with the Boston Classical Orchestra, Harry Ellis Dickson, conductor, in a performance of Beethoven's Choral Fantasy in November and on New Year's Eve at Boston Opera House.

The Chorus will also be performing Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the well-known conductor Benjamin Zaaders.

Cruising on the Royal Caribbean Sun Viking

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, St. Thomas, the capital of the United States Virgin Islands.

By AL and FRANCES SYLVIA

Publishers of North Reading Transcript and Lynnfield Villager

This is the final article in a series on a cruise to the Caribbean aboard the Sun Viking last summer by members of the International Press Study Mission.

ST. THOMAS, VIRGIN ISLANDS — AMERICAN PARADISE

When sailing the Caribbean one thing is certain, all sea lanes lead to St. Thomas, the area's number one cruise destination, visited by over 450 ships during the busy winter season. Multiply this by the hundreds of passengers and you realize why tourism is the basis of the island's economy. Fortunately when the Royal Caribbean Sun Viking docked for her full day in port, we were joined by only three other cruise ships.

St. Thomas, 32-square miles in area, is the main island of the United States Virgin chain which also includes St. Croix and St. John, along with many small islands, some mere volcanic rocks. Not to be confused with their neighbors, the British Virgins, both groups are part of the curving Antilles that separate the Atlantic Ocean from the Caribbean Sea. The name, given by Columbus who discovered them in 1493, is derived from Las Virgenes, referring to the legendary 11,000 martyred virgins, followers of St. Ursula.

Claimed by several European countries during the 17th century when sugarcane was "King of the Caribbean," the islands finally were colonized by Denmark and became a Crown Colony in 1734. During the 18th

One man reflects on a dreary day in WWII

By JIM ROUILLARD

"Sleep in peace, slain in your country's wars!"

Shakespeare,
"Titus Andronicus"

Though it may appear foolish to write that war is never easy — somehow, since the Vietnam War — it seems a tougher, far more complex issue to decide if America should be involved in any given military action.

But if there were ever a war in which most Americans might agree that the nation had to become engaged, it would probably be World War II, when by all accounts we faced a sure and ruthless foe.

Recently, in honor of Veterans Day 1984 — the Town of Stoneham dedicated a new monument to the Stoneham veterans who served in Vietnam — in this most paradoxical and divisive of modern conflicts.

Yet for one Stoneham officer and veteran, Air Corps Navigator Joseph H. Talbot, there is another monument in another town in Massachusetts, which points up the apparent blind irony — and the paradox — of who is to die, who to survive, in any war or even any human situation.

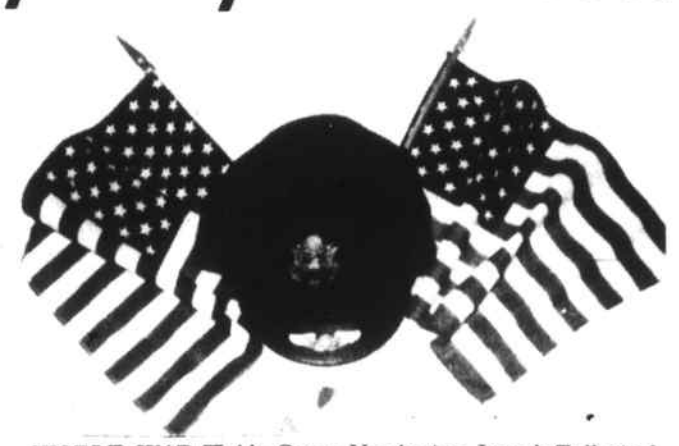

Joe Talbot is one of two survivors of a 1944 aircrash which claimed the lives of five other crew members. But the B-24 Liberator bomber "Nine Yanks and a Jerk," fell to smoking ruin, not from the skies of France or Germany, but out of the clouds over Uxbridge, Massachusetts.

The people of that small community have never forgotten the event, but memorialize it with a special ceremony every year — at the site where they raised a monument to those who died "for country and humanity."

Joe Talbot has never forgotten, either.

And perhaps, Joe argues, with

WORLD WAR II Air Corps Navigator Joseph Talbot of Stoneham was reluctant to have his picture taken. But Talbot, one of two survivors of a 1944 B-24 aircrash on American soil, did supply his World War II hat for the above photo. Beneath the visor of his cap are fragments of the plane, fused with rocks from the heat of the plane's explosion. (Jim Rouillard photo)

FM TALK: The following is another edition of our far-flung correspondent's off-beat tidbits of Americana:

"Nepotism," this columnist was told once, "is the way politicians reward their families for not screwing up their chances at winning an election." President U.S. Grant was known for, among other things, his dubious distinction of having thirteen relatives on the federal payroll. Among the positions held by his family members were postmaster at Covington, Kentucky (his father held that position), minister to Denmark, customs appraiser in San Francisco, and collector of the Port of New Orleans. It is not known whether Grant handed out these plumb jobs because his law were enforced these days, we'd see more responsible relatives obliged him by not ruining his chances at the presidency, however.

During his presidency U.S. Grant achieved notoriety for another unusual trait: he enjoyed driving his horse carriage at high speeds. At one point he was actually arrested for speeding!

There is a federal law that has been enforced only twice since its passage more than a century ago, a piece of legislation that you voters might like to see enforced regularly. The law, passed in Congress in 1872, calls for members of both houses to be docked a day's pay for every day's absence. The only exception is illness. Perhaps if this legislation passed. Just a thought: it might not be a bad idea to not only enforce this law in Congress but to extend it to affect state legislators also.

Here's a trivia question that is sure to stump friends at your next trivial pursuit party: Where and when was the ice-cream soda invented? Well, it was actually invented by accident, in 1874, when Robert M. Green substituted vanilla ice cream for sweet cream in sodas he was selling at a semicentennial celebration of the Franklin Institute, in Philadelphia.

Whenever we hear the quote "Go West, young man, go west," we think of Horace Greeley, the man to whom the quote is attributed. But Greeley never said those words. They were actually phrased by John L. Soule, an Indiana newspaper reporter, who published them in the Terre Haute Express, in 1851. Somehow the phrase was connected to Greeley, who repeatedly denied ever having said them. At one time, Greeley even had the article reprinted, hoping that people would stop attributing the quote to him, but they still persisted.

Another trivia question for you: Who was William King? Well, King was vice-president under Franklin Pierce, in the 1850s. Why is this significant? King was the only man in history to be elected vice-president and not have the opportunity to fulfill his obligation to the office. Forty-five days after he took the oath (in Cuba, by the way, which also made him the only vice-president to be sworn into office in a foreign country) he died. His chief obligation incidentally, was to preside over the Senate, which is the only responsibility prescribed for the vice-president by the Constitution.

Gail Borden, who came up with the process of condensing milk and founded the company that bears his name, became obsessed with the idea of condensation. He wanted to condense just about anything he could get his hands upon. He was once quoted as saying, "I mean to put a potato into a pill box, a pumpkin into a tablespoon, the biggest sort of watermelon into a saucer." Needless to say, his lifelong ambition ceased after he invented condensed milk.

Here's an item that should be filed under the heading "Believe It or Not": After the mother of Robert E. Lee ws reportedly buried alive during a catatonic trance, an inventor patented a coffin which permitted a person inside the box to ring a bell aboveground.

John Tyler was the only U.S. president to serve in the Confederate government. Sixteen years after his retirement from the presidency in 1845, Tyler was elected to represent his native state, Virginia, in the House of Representatives — of the Confederacy!

The word "sideburns" was coined by Civil War General Ambrose Burnside.

"An honest politician is one who when he is bought will stay bought!" — Simon Cameron.

On that note — tongue-in-cheek, of course — I bid you readers a fond adieu. Make it a good week, and I'll catch you next Wednesday (or thereabouts).

Disabled newlyweds find honeymoon sites

Any honeymoon requires special planning. If either one, or both, newlyweds has a physical disability, the happy experience can turn into a disheartening chore, and worse yet, cause disappointment and severe difficulties if the accommodations prove to be inaccessible when the blissful couple arrives.

But now, there is some help. The Itinerary: 'The' Magazine for Travelers with Physical Disabilities, has featured detailed information on 16 accessible honeymoon sites in its July-August issue and is offering a free copy to any interested disabled person, according to Elizabeth C. Zywicki, publisher.

"If one or both newlyweds is disabled," Mrs. Zywicki explained, "detailed planning of an accessible wedding trip is essential for a happy beginning to the marriage and a good vacation. It is best to be armed with information concerning accessibility and the special needs of your, or your spouse's, disability before you visit your travel agent or before you make your own arrangements," she advised, noting that most travel agents are not knowledgeable in serving clients with disabilities.

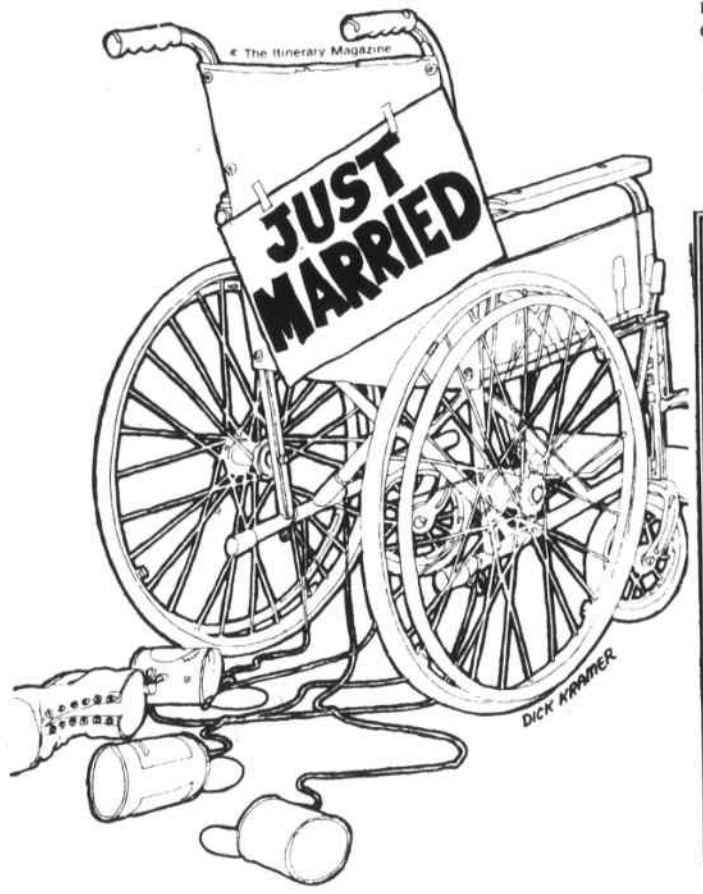

Mrs. Zywicki added, "Exciting destinations and romantic images can be found in any direction you and your new spouse want to travel. Many hotels have honeymoon packages, and many of these romantic excursions can be found in 'handicapped-equipped' rooms."

The feature story in The Itinerary Magazine highlights varied honeymoon sites within a wide range of locations, climate, price range, activities available and accessibility. Each description provides data on the number of accessible rooms, restaurants, parking facilities, rates and special honeymoon packages, sightseeing and more. Details are included for individuals with hearing and visual disabilities as well as for persons in wheelchairs.

The same information is equally as valuable to any disabled traveler — married or not — who requires accessible accommodations, according to Mrs. Zywicki, who has published the magazine with her husband since 1981. He's a former newspaper editor, who has been disabled for 21 years, and they have traveled extensively together.

Cities listed include San Francisco, Las Vegas, Chicago, New York City, New Orleans and Quebec. Newlyweds drawn to the islands will find information on Hawaii, Barbados, and St. Thomas and history buffs will be helped by the reports on Washington, D.C., Colonial Williamsburg, Va. and Boston. Data on the Grand Canyon National Park in Arizona, Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming and Lake Louise in Alberta, Canada will aid persons planning a rustic honeymoon, Mrs. Zywicki said.

She noted that the popular Disney World Vacation Kingdom in Florida is also included and reported that the magazine plans to update this noneymoon feature with additional listings in future issues.

The July-August issue of The Itinerary Magazine also includes a consumer survey on the hotel needs of travelers with disabilities, being conducted by Chalmers University of Technology in Sweden; a travelogue on Mexico City; a report on water safety at shores, lakes and rivers; a story on a Wyoming summer camp for the disabled; a listing of over 50 accessible tours and cruises and more.

The free "Honeymoon Issue" is available to any disabled person from: The Itinerary Magazine, P.O. Box 1084, Bayonne, N.J. 07002-1084. Mrs. Zywicki said the magazine is published bi-monthly and subscriptions are available only by mail at $6 for one year and $11 for two years.

Control thermostat!

Check your fingertips. They can provide you with one of the easiest and most effective ways to save money on home energy heating costs. How? By using them to lower and control your thermostat.

The National Bureau of StandaRds estimates that you could save between two to three percent on your heating bill for each average degree Fahrenheit that you lower your thermostAt setting (in the range between 55 degrees F and 7/8¼degrees F) during the heating season. In effect, the amount of dollars you could save is at your fingertips.

You can begin by becoming adjusted to lower temperatures while at home. Cooler temperatUres are even said to be healthier. This is not recommended, of course, when there are elderly persons in the home or small children who play on the floors.

Still, when you dress properly you can feel quite comfortable at lower temperatures. Several layers of loose-fitting wool or cotton clothes will help keep you warm. At bedtime, consieR wearing wool or cotton pajamas, long underwear, socks — and even a night cap for your head. During sleeping hours, lower your thermostat. It is a misconception to think that it takes as much or more energy to reheat the house in the morning. In fact, it has been proven that you can save approximately 10 percent on your heating bill by setting back your thermostat 10 degrees F at night (in the range between 55 degrees F and 72 degrees F) for an eight-hour period.

The cost of heating your home is going to remain at a high level. Anything you can do to save yourself dollars should be given serious consideration. And that includes the services of your fingertips!

Turkey Talk

Question: How long can a fresh turkey be stored in a home refrigerator?

Answer: Fresh turkeys should be stored no longer than 2 days in a home refrigerator.

Question: I forgot to take my turkey out of the freezer to allow enough time for it to thaw in the refrigerator. Isn't there a faster method that is also safe?

Answer: You can thaw the turkey in cold water. Check the wrapping to make sure it has no tears. Then simply place the bird in its unopened bag in the sink or in a large container and cover it with cold water. If the wrapping is torn, place the turkey in another plastic bag, close securely, and then place in water. You will need to change the water frequently — about every 30 minutes — to assure safe but effective thawing. An 8 to 12 pound turkey will take 4 to 6 hours; a 12 to 16 pound turkey 6 to 9 hours; 16 to 20 pound turkey 9 to 11 hours; and a 20 to 24 pound turkey 11 to 12 hours.

Question: What is the safest way to thaw a turkey?

Answer: Your best bet is to thaw the turkey in your refrigerator. Simply place the turkey in its original wrap on a tray or in a pan to catch moisture that accumulates as it thaws. An 8 to 12 pound turkey will take 1 to 2 days to thaw; a 12 to 16 pound turkey 2 to 3 days; a 16 to 20 pound turkey 3 to 4 days; and a 20 to 24 pound turkey 4 to 5 days.

Question: I want to stuff my turkey. When should I do it?

Answer: Turkeys should be stuffed only at the last minute. However, the dry stuffing ingredients may be prepared the day before, tightly covered, and left at room temperature. The perishables (butter or margagine, mushrooms, oysters, cooked celery and onions, broth) should be refrigerated. The ingredients should then be combined just before stuffing the turkey. Allow three-fourths of a cup of stuffing for each pound of ready-to-eat turkey. Extra stuffing may be baked separately.

Question: How can I tell when my turkey is done?

Answer: The most reliable method for detecting doneness is by using a meat thermometer. The turkey is done when the temperature reaches 180 degrees F to 185 degrees F in the inner thigh of whole turkeys and in the center of the thickest part of turkey pieces. To check the stuffing, insert the thermometer through the body cavity into the thickest part of the stuffing and leave it for 5 minutes. As soon as your turkey is completely cooked, you should remove all the stuffing from the cavities. Harmful bacteria is more likely to grow in the stuffing if it sits in the bird after cooking. If you do need all the stuffing for first servings, you can put the remaining stuffing in the oven at 200 degrees F to keep hot until you need it.

Question: How long is it safe to keep cooked turkey leftovers at room temperature?

Answer: Think of the post-cooking stage as a countdown which begins when you take the turkey out of the oven. From that time you have approximately 2 hours to serve it and then refrigerate or freeze the leftovers — the turkey, stuffing, and gravy — before bacteria that cause food poisoning can multiply to undesirable levels.

century they prospered in cotton, sugar and rum. Although President Lincoln began negotiations for their purchase, it was not until 1917 that the United States purchased them during World War I for $25 million in gold considering them to be of strategic military importance. The 200-year domination of the Danes ended and after World War II under the U. S. their economic upswing began. Although an American territory under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior, St. Thomas has held on to its Danish tradition of driving on the left which frequently surprises American visitors.

Over the centuries St. Thomas has seen the assault of pirates, buckaneers and slave traders and became the burial ground of looted treasure. Today it is still under assault from the hordes of bargain hunters heading for the shops. Charlotte Amalie, named for a consort of a Danish King, is the capital and has one of the most beautiful harbors in the entire Caribbean. Against a background of emerald green hillsides, dotted with gleaming white buildings topped with shiny red tile roofs, the town is clustered along the waterfront where yachts, colorful sailboats and large cruise ships are docked. Many of the shops lining the narrow streets and tucked into hidden passageways are located in restored warehouses where pirates' plunder and molasses and rum were stored 200 years ago. There are so many shops you could spend your entire day shopping, but resist this temptation and sample other charms of the island.

Known as the American Paradise, St. Thomas offers water sports galore, Coral World which is an undersea observatory and marine park, Bluebeard's Castle, now a hotel, Blackbeard's Tower, a spy lookout for the Spanish galleons, but most of all white coral sand beaches indenting the entire coastline. Megen's Bay was named one of the world's 10 most beautiful beaches by National Geographic magazine.

The picturesque Skyline Drive over the hilly roads will take you through the residential area where homes are built on stilts into the hillsides and surrounded by colorful gardens. The Mountain Top, 1500 feet and the highest point on the island, offers a spectacular view of Megen's Bay, St. John and the British Virgins. Combining a restaurant with several shops and boutiques, Mountain Top is literally "top banana," annually serving one-quarter million banana daiquiris made with Virgin Island rum, a drink invented here 25 years ago and a must stop for tourists.

Nearby St. John, the smallest and most tranquil of the three major islands, will be preserved in its natural state thanks in a great part to Laurence Rockefeller who purchased thousands of acres of land and deeded them to the National Park Service in 1956 for safekeeping. This includes about two-thirds of the 21-square-mile island and most of its spectacular shoreline.

After 250 years, St. Croix still has a pronounced Danish influence. Its two towns, Christiansted and Frederiksted, contain many reminders of the island's past with an unhurried way of life where tourists can browse in a more leisurely atmosphere than on busy St. Thomas.

July Fourth is celebrated in the Virgin Islands much the same way as we celebrate it in the United States. Megen's Bay was filled with families enjoying cookouts and family fun. The Sun Viking had a special Independence Day dinner with red, white and blue decorations, costumed waiters and even "Uncle Sam" leading the patriotic tunes. It was an appropriate climax to a holiday celebration which began with a flag ceremony on deck by Capt. Skjerve as we sailed into St. Thomas. The stars and stripes made an inspiring picture being raised against the bright blue sky to the singing of the National Anthem.

Sailing along the coast of Puerto Rico that evening, fireworks were visible in the distance and nature added flashes of light over the dark sea, a hint of a storm brewing. Off the north coast of Puerto Rico, the seas became very rough and about 3 a.m. the ship was hit broadside by a 20-foot wave from a tropical squall. Even the sound sleepers were awakened, but with complete confidence in Capt. Skjerve and his capable crew, most of us were literally "rocked" back to sleep. With the aid of the stabilizers the ship weathered the storm very nicely and in the morning the Captain promised us a good sailing day and offered bargains on figurines for those with a good supply of glue. In compensation for our disturbed sleep, we all were invited to an open bar cocktail party.

During the two days cruising back to Miami in sunny warm weather, we noticed a Spanish-speaking family intently watching the coastline of Cuba and learned that they were native Cubans whose home town could be seen in the distance. They had left family and friends never to return and although they had built a successful life in California, it was a very poignant moment for them. It made us realize how readily we Americans take our freedom for granted.

Ending the cruise as it had begun with a festive party, we were jolted back to reality after spending two weeks suspended in time. We faced packing, customs, and airline schedules but the Royal Caribbean organized everything very smoothly and debarkation was completed quickly and orderly.

The Royal Caribbean Sun Viking had sailed 3588 nautical miles in two weeks to eight ports all in the Caribbean with many similarities, but each with its own distinctive personality to attract the tourist.

For a carefree vacation, a cruise on the Royal Caribbean Sun Viking is made to order and if you are lucky enough to sail under Capt. Skjerve and his friendly crew, that's an added bonus. After debarking, even the most skeptical members of our group knew the answers to the question, "Why a cruise?"

MOVIE REVIEWS — Rochelle Flynn

The Little Drummer Girl The Razor's Edge and Firstborn

The Little Drummer Girl Starring Diane Keaton, Yorgo Voyagis, Klaus Kinski. Directed by George Roy Hill. Screenplay by Loring Mandel. Produced by Robert Crawford. Based upon the novel by John Le Carre. Rated R (violence, profanity.)

The Little Drummer Girl is the latest screen adaptation of a John Le Carre novel. Starring Diane Keaton as an actress-cum-revolutionary, this muddled movie has its moments, but they are lost somewhere in the midst of the most confusing politics since the Mid East Peace talks.

Keaton, who wears strange, oversized clothes and sports an unflattering hairstyle, is really not in top form. She is unconvincing at best, and her performance is generally flat. Aside from her shortcomings as an actress, Keaton is simply too old for the title role. Her character, Charlie, is supposed to be a young, impressionable girl. Who in the world would ever believe that a woman pushing 40 is as gullible as Charlie, an American actress in a British repertory company who is seduced into a counter-revolutionary movement?

What few surprises there are come from the supporting cast. Klaus Kinski does a fine job, even though he is cast against type as the controlled leader of Israeli intelligence officers (he usually plays demented killers.) French actor Sami Frey stands out as a ruthless terrorist with a tender streak.

However, a supporting cast does not a movie make, especially since director George Roy Hill has trouble getting his point across. Maybe this is just not his type of film, as he seems to do better with lighter fare, such as The Sting and Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid. Skip this flick, try the book.

The Rayor's Edge Starring Bill Murray, Theresa Russell, Catherine Hicks, Denholm Elliott. Directed by John Byrum. Screenplay by Byrum and Murray. Produced by Rob Cohen. Based on the novel by W. Somerset Maugham. Rated PG-13 (profanity, violence.)

Bill Murray in a straight role is difficult to fathom, even while you are watching his performance. Despite his apparent earnestness and ability to be touching at the appropriate moments, you keep waiting for him to break into old Saturday Night Live routines. And, there are moments in The Razor's Edge when his knack for silliness comes creeping through the surface of Larry Darrell, his character. No matter how appropriate the comedy might be, it makes you think of Murray, not Darrell.

TERI GARR plays a divorced mother who falls in love with an unstable drifter in Paramount Pictures' "Firstborn."

(Credit: Barbra Walz)

The film deals with the long lasting effects of WWI on Darrell, and his subsequent search for the meaning of life. Although it should hold your interest, this is not technically a great film, mostly due to numerous coincidences in the plot and stilted direction from John Byrum. Actually, it will be interesting to see what Murray could do with another dramatic role, presuming it is in a better scripted film.

First Born Starring Teri Garr, Peter Weller, Christopher Collet. Directed by Michael Apted. Written by Ron Koslow. Produced by Paul Junger Witt and Tony Thomas. Rated PG-13 (violence, profanity.)

First Born marks Teri Garr's first leading, dramatic role as a woman whose eldest son tries to save her from a disasterous love affair with Peter Weller, whose character gives new meaning to the word sleazy. Christopher Collet is wonderfully refreshing in the title role. This young man is neither precocious nor sickeningly sweet, both common traits in young, American actors.

The plot deals with the results of a divorce from the kids' point of view, and really has a lot of potential. Unfortunately, it misses the mark at the halfway point and deteriorates rapidly, resulting in a markedly forced ending. Director Michael Apted relies on an overly long car chase for action, and an extended meaningful stare scene for a supposedly emotion packed finale. Both of these techniques are strained and unnecessary, resulting in a mediocre movie.

College grads salaries higher

The general upward trend in starting salaries of inexperienced college graduates continues, according to the annual survey recently completed by Dr. Steven Langer. Graduates with masters degrees in engineering had an average monthly starting salary of $2,507 (up 9.5 percent since last year); with technical masters degrees $2,363 (up 10.7 percent); and with non-technical masters $1,932 (up 11.1 percent). Complete details (including analyses by 33 curricula and 15 types of employer) are contained in the "1984 College REcruiting Report," available for $95.00 for Abbott, Langer & Associates, 548 First Street, Crete, Il. 60417.

Graduates with bachelor degrees in engineering had average starting salaries of $2,206 per month, up 6.5 percent from last year. The highest-paying employers for this group were petroleum-natural gas firms ($2,324); the lowest-paying, fabricated metal product manufacturers ($1,853) and construction and engineering firms ($1,887). The highest-paid engineering graduates had specialized in mining-mineral engineering ($2,723); the lowest-paid in civil engineering ($1,879).

Technical (non-engineering) BA-BS graduates had average starting salaries of $1,954, up 4.2 percent from last year. The highest-paying industry for technical bachelor graduates was merchandising ($2,319), their average being pushed up by the salaries of pharmacy graduates. The lowest average starting salaries were reported by banking and other financial firms ($1,424). The highest-paid curriculum (excluding pharmacy was geology ($2,272); the lowest, biological sciences ($1,688).

The average starting salary for non-technical bachelor graduates increased 6.8 percent from last year to $1,476. The highest-paying employer groups were communications services ($1,843) and fabricated metal manufacturers ($1,821). Merchandising organizations, hospitality firms, and apparel and textile product manufacturers reported the lowest average starting salaries ($1,232, $1,261, and $1,285 respectively). The highest-paying curriculum was accounting ($1,599); the lowest, education ($1,119).

Junior-community college graduates with engineering-related A.A. degrees averaged 53 percent of the starting salary of comparable bachelor graduates; with technical-related A.A. degrees 64 percent, and with non-technical degrees 57 percent.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Many years ago, movies were silent. The only sound came from a piano whose player tried to match the music and scenes shown on the screen so that it would improve and enhance the film's story. In the early 30s sound and pictures were synchronized so that families could attend theaters for an enjoyable evening, seeing and hearing this new invention known as 'the Talkies.' Parents had no need to concern themselves with whether or not a movie showing that evening was rated PG, R, or any other appraisal, for the pictures in that era were all wholesome, family stories, or musicals and sagas of the western frontier.

The movies that were silent and became talkies are now 'unspeakable,' for the most part. I have solved that problem for my family by buying a video cassett recorder and selecting family-type movies at Doyon's Video in Reading every week. The family, as a unit, can enjoy movies with beautiful music (such as movies with songs by the Trapp family, 'The Bells of St. Mary' with Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman), and hundreds of other fine video tapes available at Doyon's.

My cousin, an attorney, was sick with the 'flu' last week — but, being a lawyer, he called it "a brief case of the grip."

My uncle, John Shea of North Reading, was in court last week to prove that at 80 plus he was still capable of conducting his own financial affairs. His bosom pal and crony, Rowan Fitzgerald, was there as a character witness (make that two characters). "Mr. Fitzgerald," asked the judge, "is it true that your friend, John Shea, talks to himself when he is alone?" "I don't know, your Honor," responded Rowan, "I have never been with him when he is alone."

"Mr. Shea," continued the judge, "have you ever been in this court before?" "Yes, your Honor," "In what suit?" "I think it was my 'blue serge suit.' "

Speaking of suits, I bought one at Ostuni Factory Outlet in Burlington. Caspar and Tom Burke were more than accommodating, making sure the size, fit and color was just right so that I's look my best when I speak at the Elks, VFW and social events.

My cousin, Dennis Tully, came over to my house and I asked him if he was going on a trip. "As a matter of fact, I am," he said. "But how did you know?" "Dennis, I could see the 'bags' under your eyes. Besides that, I know you're going to Egypt." "Holy smokes, that's right! How'd you guess?" "Elementary, my dear Dennis, you're wearing a 'camel hair' coat."

It was my wife Kathy's birthday, so I took her out to dinner. I knew it was a first-class restaurant — the tables had multi-colored tablecloths, there was sawdust on the floor and the waitress taking our order was chewing gum. "What will youse have?" she asked, in pure, Brooklynese-fractured English. Kathy ordered a steak and I ordered half-a-chicken. After 20 minutes, I was still waiting while Kathy was enjoying her steak. "Why the delay?" I asked the diction teacher from Hoboken. "Listen here, Buster," she snapped, "We can't kill half-a-chicken — you'll have to wait until someone else orders the other half!"

Danny McLaughlin, of Wakefield, has a beautiful Irish voice. He can hold a note for over a minute. "What's so great about that?" asked Alice, his wife. "The bank has held one of Danny's notes for five years!"

I asked the beautiful Maureen Donahue if she liked flowers. "Oh, indeed I do!," she exclaimed, as she looked to see if I was holding a bunch of them behind my back. "Good," I smilingly replied, "here are 'tu'-lips you can have." Well, folks, she gave me a great big 'smack,' and I had 'three'-lips for anyone to have.

Bob Bergeron, of Woburn, worked for the Boston & Maine Railroad. It took a lot of 'training.' A passenger said to him, "My face is my ticket!" "Good," said Bob. "I have orders to punch all tickets." "Little girl," asked Bob, "how old are you?" "I'm five years old." "When will you be six?" "When I get off the train."

The following is only for the young at heart. (That means for everyone who reads this column, even my Aunt Maria.)

"O-hi-o, why did Del-a-ware a New Jersey?" "I-da-ho, but Al-ask-a."

Now you know why Bob Butler asked me if either of my parents were weight-lifters. "Why do ask, Bob?" "Because they sure raised a 'dumb-bell.' " As one of the three stooges used to say, "I resemble that remark!"

Three beautiful ladies — Rose Magliozzi, of Jim Curley's Insurance Office; Betsy Rogers, of Middlesex East advertising; and Cathy Davis, a telephone company computer tech.

Faithful readers of Woodchips — Lorraine Pacy, of Town Taxi, Stoneham; Bob Scully, of Stoneham Lumber; Ed Sargent, of Wilmington (happy birthday, Ed!); Christine Griffin, of Winchester; Shirley McGurn of Wilmington; Robert Rowe and his wife, Gerri, of Wakefield; Jimmy Stewart (a double for Clark Gable); State Trooper Stephen Kelly, of Peabody; Jimmy and Fay Rodolfos, of Woburn; and my very special friend, Coach Peter Sullivan, of Woburn High, to whom I give Grantland Rice's famous words, "It's not whether you win or lose that counts — but how you play the game." I wouldn't try telling that to the Woburn alumni, Peter.

Being an ex-Navy man (19 years), whenever I see the letters 'S.S.' in front of a name, I think it's a ship. But 'S.S. Pierce' is not a ship — it's where the finest gourmet gift packages can be purchased. If your ship comes in, you can be sure there will be an IRS agent on the pier to 'dock' it.

I called Bill Velmure, of Velmure Art Studios, and asked him if the police dog that poses for the students to sketch, gets a 'model's' fee. "Of course, he doesn't pose for 'animal crackers.' " Hey Bill, I write the jokes in this column.

My cousin, Dean Murphy, and his wife, Clare, were looking at an apartment they wanted to lease in an exclusive section of Reading. He was asked, "Do you have any children, play any musical instruments, or own a cat, dog, or parrot?" "No," said the now thoroughly confused and bewildered Dean, "But I do have a fountain pen that scratches now and then."

Can you say tonight in parting
As the day is ending fast,
That you've helped a single brother,
Of the many that you've passed?

Someday you may be standing there,
So cold you'd want to cry.
And hope that someone stops and helps you,
Instead of passing you by.

'Pajama Game' magic comes to Reading

Broadway's magic descends upon Reading this weekend and next weekend with Colonial Chorus Players' uproariously entertaining musical, Adler and Ross' "The Pajama Game."

Featuring some of the best song-and-dance numbers ever composed for the American Stage ("Hey There," "Steam Heat," "Hernando's Hideaway," "I'm Not At All In Love," "I'll Never Be Jealous Again"), "The Pajama Game" offers sizzling romance, jealous intrigue, and a classic confrontation between the sexes as female-dominated labor and male-dominated management begin sparring over a pay raise.

An extraordinarily talented cast has been assembled by directors/choreographers Tony Salamone, Lisa Harrington and Nancy Ferretti. Creating the role of Sid, the new superintendent at the Sleep-Tite Pajama Factory is David Ryan of Billerica. Making his debut with the Colonial Chorus Players, this fine singer and actor is certain to delight audiences with his renditions of "Hey There" and "There Once Was A Man."

Playing opposite Sid as Babe Williams is Maria Marasco of Andover, whose lovely protrayal of Julie Jordan in CCP's production of "Carousel" brought her much acclaim. Maria has been a soloist with the Chrismas Revels and Sea Revels, and is presently recording two songs with a Boston-based recording company.

Holding the entire operation together (if not his love life), is comic Time-Study expert Hines. Insanely suspicious of his girlfriend, Gladys, Hines nevertheless tries to convince himself that he is the picture of trust in "I'll Never Be Jealous Again." Hines is played by Bob Haggerty of Stoneham, whose hilarious portrayal of the Backwoodsman in CCP's "Show Boat" last spring immediately pegged him for the future leading roles. Gladys, the woman of his dreams as well as the sexy secretary to the boss, is played by Lorraine Tempone of Stoneham. This accomplished dancer-actress will dazzle audiences with her seductive "Steam Heat" and "Hernando's Hideaway" numbers. Her previous credits include the roles of Lily in GBARC's "Carnival," and Gert in "California Suite."

Every company needs its office busy-body, and at the Sleep-Tite factory it's Mabel, winningly protrayed by Barbara Kerrigan of Woburn. Barbara's stage credits include the parts of Dolly Tate in "Annie Get Your Gun," and Old Lady on the Levee in "Show Boat."

The local union president and resident womanizer, Prez, is played by Tripp Grosvenor of Reading. Tripp is a well-known favorite with local audiences, having been Pelinore in Lynnfield's "Camelot," and Mr. Bascombe in "Carousel" with the CCP. One of Prez's conquests is Mae, played by Laura Kenty of North Reading. Laura was most recently seen as the bumbling housekeeper in CCP's "Show Boat."

Rounding out the roster of characters are Bob Hawes of Woburn as Hasler, who delighted CCP audiences as the beloved Captain Andy in "Show Boat"; Harvey Schein of Newton who debuts as Max; Paul McCarthy of Reading as Pop, who's long been a favorite character actor with CCP regulars as Doc in "Girl Crazy"; Horace Van Der Gelder in "Hello Dolly"; Beth Mosier of Wakefield as Poopsie; Joe Hurley and George Williams of Reading as First and Second Helpers, respectively; Charlene Perkins of Danvers as Brenda; Tony McPherson of Winchester as Joe; and Rick Stewart of Woburn as Charlie.

One of the hallmarks of a Salamone-Harrington production is its fabulous Fossesque choreography, and this show has the on-stage talent to do justice to the moves. The "Steam Heat" dancers, led by Lorraine Tempone, are polished hoofers John MacDonald, Charlene Perkins and Carol Robertshaw. MacDonald was most recently seen as the comic dance lead, Frank, in CCP's "Show Boat"; Perkins had the part of Grazielle in Andover Community Theater's production of "West Side Story"; and Robertshaw has performed and taught dance for several years in the greater Boston area. The other featured dancers include assistant choreographer Sharyn Taitz, who impressed audiences with her strong portrayal of Tessa in "Girl Crazy"; producer Jackie Van Horn, who has had several major dance leads, including the part of Gladys in another production of "The Pajama Game"; Lorraine McCarthy, a way of thinking which some might call naive, if individuals were to act differently in certain critical, or even common, everyday situations — tragedies like the 1944 crash in Uxbridge, and the great global wars themselves might not occur.

WWII vet reflects

At the dedication of the new Stoneham monument, a Stoneham High School student and poet, Maria Carroll, asked similar common-sense questions:

"The body's atrocity, just make-up of War

Missing limbs, a missing answer, what is it all for?

Is it greed? Only the warmongers know for sure."

Joe Talbot said he was raised in the small town of Roberts, Illinois, 100 miles south of Chicago, on the richest farming soil in the country. Back in the 40s, he was farming that soil, in fact, and earning $32.50 a month, plus all he could eat (which was five meals a day, the still-lean Talbot confided.)

Within a year, after a six-month stint in a defense plant in Chicago, making telephones for the Navy, his income had multiplied ten times, to $327.00 a month, by his enlistment in the U. S. Air Corps.

I saw the movie "I Wanted Wings," he quipped, "and that's what I wanted. Everybody was enlisting then, because we saw it as a lark, but also, the enemy was clear and obvious. Hitler had to be stopped."

The 24-year-old navigator and his crew were all set, in fact, to go abroad. They were returning from a run from Westover Air Base in Hampden County to Baltimore in a formation of three B-24s — with a crew reduced to seven from the usual 10 — to give the members of one of the other bombers' crew enough flying time to authorize them all for overseas duty.

Talbot said the Liberator was circling the area above Worcester County. Alone in the nose, he said he'd become bored by the four-hour run to Baltimore and back, and had just removed his oxygen mask, since the altimeter indicated they were at 10,000 feet, when suddenly "it felt like an engine fell off or we hit an air pocket.

"I stood up on some ammunition cases to see what had happened, then I heard the engineer screaming 'Bail out! Bail out!' over the intercom. I looked down and I saw the pilot had opened the nose-wheel doors, so I knew they meant business."

Within seconds, the plane had gone into a flat-spin, Joe said, so he knew it was plummeting fast. He'd had one parachute class, he said, which he had "probably slept through," and though the crew usually did not wear their parachute harnesses, for some reason he had put his on for this particular run. But the chute still had to be attached to his harness — and he said he couldn't manage it because the bomber's plunging spin was knocking him all around the nose compartment. He knew he had only seconds, he said, if he were to survive — so he braced himself against the walls of the chamber and finally managed to attach his chute to the harness.

But he didn't want to jump.

Somehow, he said, he overcame that brief instant of fear — but could not jump head first as he'd been taught, to avoid striking his head against the plane, so he jumped feet first, and clung to the plane's frame until the wind whipped him from the underbelly of the falling aircraft, cutting his fingers.

He reached for the ripcord — and it wasn't there.

In his panic, inexperience, and haste, he'd fastened his parachute on backwards. The ripcord was on the left rather than the right side. He found it and pulled it. The silk chute billowed out above him — and it was then that he was struck by the shock of sudden, virtual silence.

After four hours exposure to the roar of the powerful B-24s four engines — all he heard now was the rustle of the wind in his parachute.

He turned his head and saw clouds of black smoke, and only one other chute.

Then he noticed that he was approaching some high-tension wires and thought that if he pulled on the lines of the chute he could change directions. But as he pulled, he said, the chute seemed to start to collapse above him, so he left off trying to change direction and prepared to kick off the wires if he hit them.

He passed a few feet above them — and landed in a pasture. One other crew member, 18-year-old Pfc Robert Kelly, of DeKalb, Illinois, had bailed out in time.

The pilot never left his seat, Talbot said, and the co-pilot was also found dead, in the bomb bay. The bodies of the other three crew members were found near the plane, their chutes only partially opened.

Talbot and Kelly were hustled to the maternity ward of nearby Whitinsville Hospital — and the second-in-command at Westover showed up with a staff car a few hours later and the caution that the two survivors should say nothing, since "all kinds of rumors" were being broadcast about what, exactly, had happened.

Talbot said he could only speculate that one of the pilots had become confused and that his plane collided with Talbot's, shearing off the tail section. "If we'd been in a B-17 (Flying Fortress) we could have brought her down safely," he said.

Joe and his wife Beverly Burns (Begg) Talbot, who is a great-great-great-niece of the Scottish poet Robert Burns, a native of Greenfield, Massachusetts, and works for the Stoneham Municipal Employees Credit Union, returned to Uxbridge this year, on the 40th anniversary of the crash.

Talbot said he never made it overseas because of the loss of his crew and he still doesn't know why he was destined to survive when five others perished: "Sure, I've wondered why I survived. I've mulled it over. And I don't really know. I was the oldest; the other survivor was the youngest. But I guess I believe that we're here on the planet for a purpose — and there must have been some purpose for my survival."

He said he was made an instructor in navigation training for the duration of his stint, and was mustered out 40 years ago this month. He never did actually go into battle but his experience brings to mind those words of poet Walt Whitman:

The living remained and suffered.

The mother suffered, and the wife, and the child,

And the musing comrade suffered,

And the armies that remained suffered."

Walt Whitman

Two monuments stand, one brand-new, one 40 years old, along with thousands of other monuments across the nation. All bear witness to war — to service and to suffering — and to the veterans who contributed "for country and humanity."

Let's not forget them, or the message they represent.

THE UNVEILING of the veterans' monument in memory to a World War II aircrash of an American B-24 on American soil — in Uxbridge, Massachusetts. Air Corps Navigator Joseph Talbot, of Stoneham, was lucky enough to walk away from the 1944 crash. Five other U. S. airmen were not so fortunate, but died before going overseas.

Butterflies taste with their hind feet.

Factory Outlets Mall

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

On November 17 and 18 the Millyard Outlet Mall will celebrate its Grand Opening.

This $5 million mall, located in an early 20th century textile mill on the Nashua River, places more than 20 factory outlets under one roof. Phase II of the mall, slated for completion in 1985, will open an additional 15 outlets. These factory outlets will offer customers first quality merchandise at 20 to 50 percent off the regular retail price.

The mall's tenants include Linens n' Things, Bass Footwear, Banister Shoe, Second Avenue, Alano Ltd, The Home Store Outlet, Baskets and Blades, D.J. Shoes, Handbag Factory Outlet, First Place Fashions, First Impressions, Providence Jewelry, Walking Gems, Clothesworks, The Book and Record Outlet, Gifts and Things, Just Accessories, Heroes Outlet for the Athlete's Foot, Davidson's Travel and the Fudge Factory. The leased retail space occupies the central core of the building so that the hardwood, broad-beam, common walkways allow public access to the windows for a view of the river.

In addition to offering bargains to the public, the mall provides shoppers with amenities not usually associated with outlet shopping. These features include a food court, a sit-down restaurant which will open in Phase II, a cocktail barge that takes shoppers on a scenic cruise of the Nashua River, and three-story, forty-foot atrium. The mall also provides parking for more than 650 cars.

Elderhostel Programs

Elderhostel programs are one-week experiences at colleges and university campuses, education centers, camps and conference centers. The focus is on learning, using the mind, and exchanging ideas. You have to be 60 to attend.

In Massachusetts, the Winter/Spring Elderhostel catalogue offers eighteen different weeks at eight locations. Atlantic Union College (S. Lancaster), Hampshire College (Amherst), Old Sturbridge Village (Sturbridge), Rowe Conference Center (Rowe), Thompson Island Education Center (Boston), Truro N.E.E.D. Collaborative (Truro), University of Bridgeport, Ct (at Nantucket), Y.E.S. Swan Lodge (Monterey) combine forces to provide this diverse, exciting array of programs.

Elderhostel weeks begin on Sunday and conclude the following Saturday. Three courses are offered, Monday to Friday. Participants are lodged in student residence halls and take meals in the campus dining facilities. A full complement of extra curricular and social activities are included. There are no tests, homework, grades or entrance requirements.

To receive the full catalogue of Elderhostel programs nationwide, write Elderhostel Winter/Spring Catalogue, 15 Garrison Ave., Durham, NH 03824. Catalogues are immediately available at your local public library as well.

Eighties Art Talk

"Public Art/Uncovering the Mural that's There" is the topic of the November "Eighties Art Talk" at the Kendall Center for the Arts, 226 Beech Street, Belmont, on Monday, November 19, at 7:30 PM.

Artist David Judelson of Clay Dragon Studios in Cambridge will discuss the development of "Flag Fragments", his ceramic tile mural for the East Cambridge parking garage, from proposal through installation. Included with the orchestration of the contributions of architects, city planners, art administrators, art commissions, fabricators, assistants, masons, contractors and the community.

"Eighties Art Talk", presented on the third Monday of each month at 7:30 PM, is a stimulating, informative series of lectures and presentations by prominent artists and art professionals which explore topics of interest and concern to professional artists and the general public.

From the means to sharing long life experiences to the value in collecting Chinese porcelain, from public artwork to bargains at the factory outlet, COMING ATTRACTIONS has a little something for everyone. But we are not everywhere all at once and could use a tip on events of interest to all from time to time. If you have knowledge of such happenings, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. It will be next week's best bargain for us.

The word astronaut comes from the Greek word for "star" — "astron" and the Greek word for "sailor" — "nautes." Thus, astronaut literally means "one who sails among the stars."

'Pajama Game'

who most recently created the memorable role of Julie in CCP's "Show Boat"; Frank Kodzis, who debuts with the CCP; Erin O'Connor and Grace Kelly, who have performed with the New Neponsett Players; Andrea Basso, who was a featured dancer in "Show Boat"; and Mary Collins, who has performed in a variety of musical comedies.

Not to be upstaged for one minute are the wonderfully amusing factory workers, without whom there would be no show. These endearing characters are delightfully portrayed by Louise Borda, Vicki Crosby (who is also the costume coordinator for the show), Paula DeYoung, Bernice Doherty, Leslie Gonzales, Nancy O'Neill, Sigrid Perkins, Judy Taylor and Rick Woolocott.

Showtime is 8:15 p.m., Nov. 16-17 and 23-24 at the Joshua Eaton School, 365 Summer Avenue, Reading. Tickets are $8, $5 for students and senior citizens. To reserve seats, call 944-6458 today. Tickets may be picked up at the door.
